

In-Spire Call for papers

Summer 2010 InSpire Special Issue Volume 5, issue 1

“The limits of (inter)disciplinary research”

InSpire publishes critical interdisciplinary research in the social sciences. So we thought it was about time that we began to get critical about interdisciplinarity. That’s why the next special issue, set to be published in the Summer of 2010, seeks to foster a discussion on “The limits of (inter)disciplinary research”.

We are seeking articles which take into consideration the role of boundaries, limits and borders from a diverse range of academic disciplines and perspectives. What is the purpose of the limit? How are they constructed? How are they contested? How are they being reconfigured? Moreover, we are seeking to spark a discussion though these questions on the value and limits of inter- and post-disciplinary research for addressing these questions.

We encourage submissions from established academics as well as young researchers in the form of traditional articles with critical research and academic referencing or book reviews.

Articles should be submitted according to the submission guidelines at www.in-spire.org/guidelines.html

They should be sent to the managing editor at enquiries@in-spire.org no later than 30th April 2010.

For further information please see our website at www.in-spire.org